

A classmate pressures you to share answers during a quiz.

Someone mocks you for not knowing the latest viral trends.

You see a friend being excluded from a group game at recess.

A group of students starts spreading rumors about a classmate.

You find someone's school project left behind and notice others planning to sabotage it.

A friend tells you a secret and someone else tries to get you to share it.

You overhear a plan to play a mean prank on a new student.

A classmate is struggling with their homework and feels hopeless.

Your team is losing in sports and a teammate suggests cheating to win.

You notice a friend being overly critical and hurtful to others online.

Someone finds a wallet on the school ground and considers keeping it.

A friend is sad because they didn't get invited to a popular kid's party.

You see someone cheating during a test and they urge you to keep quiet.

A group is making fun of another student's accent or way of speaking.

You find a loophole in a class rule that would allow you to skip homework.

Your friend gets a bad grade and wants to lie to their parents about it.

During a group project, a member wants to exclude another for being too slow.

A student is being bullied for their lunch choices.

You receive a mean message about another student and are tempted to forward it.

A classmate forgot their sports kit and is scared of being scolded by the coach.

You witness someone vandalizing school property.

A friend is upset after losing a competition and talks about giving up.

During a cleanup, a group decides to leave their mess for others to deal with.

An untrue rumor starts that could get a teacher in trouble if it spreads.

You see a younger student struggling to carry their school supplies.

Someone suggests skipping a difficult class without the teacher knowing.

A friend's reaction to a joke makes you think they are actually hurt by it.

Your group is gossiping about a student who is not there to defend themselves.

You are asked to keep watch while a friend copies homework from another student.

A student is feeling left out during a group discussion in class.